Jerry Phelps Post 237 Commander Commander's Corner

Greetings Legion Family, I would like to announce that there was an error in last month's edition of Commander's Corner. I informed the membership that we fell short of our annual goal of 100% membership. However, after the Department Convention in June, I was notified that Post 237 had indeed made our goal of 100% membership. We were actually a little bit over our goal. There was a delay in processing the transfer memberships at National Headquarters that Adjutant McCoy and Senior Vice Commander-elect Rob Satterwhite worked their butts off to attain by calling members on the Post 1983 roster and getting them transferred.

Therefore, the Department Senior Vice Commander Willie Rogers and Adjutant Ryan Marshall were at our July membership meeting and presented a 100% membership pin to Adjutant Mary McCoy and me. If you are at the Post, please let Mary and Rob know that we appreciate everything that they do.

On that note, the new 2025 membership cards are available in the Adjutant's office. Please stop by and renew as soon as possible. It would be great if we could reach 100% by December 31st. Remember if you renew on or before October 21st you will be eligible for the free "Early Bird Dinner". →

I would like to announce that I attended the newly formed Yellowhammer Legion College that was held in Montgomery from July 26th through July 28th. I am proud to say that I am the first graduate of the college from Post 237.

Lastly, I would like to inform the membership that I am announcing my candidacy for the position of 1st Division Commander for the 2025-2026 year. It is time to bring Post 237 back into prominence in Department Leadership.

Jerry Phelps, Post 237 Commander

Three Promises

Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved; for thou art my praise. Jeremiah 17:14

I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit, for without me ye can do nothing. John 15:5

I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth. Roman 1:16.

A MARRIAGE PRAYER

Dear God, As our hearts are blended in union let Your holy love be the foundation. As we promise to share our lives together, To love, cherish, and care for each other, keep our lives in steadfast devotion to You. Through joy or sorrow help us be faithful and true. Daily renew Your lasting love within our hearts. You, O God, be our guide till death do us part. Amen.

Jack Daniels Barrel Raffle

Cody Klinner won the Jack Daniels Barrel Raffle drawing on Sunday, July 28th. Thanks to all participants and to Outlaw Karaoke who donated the barrel. Over $500 was raised for the Veterans Retreat.

Honor Guard Van

Due to the generous donations, the Honor Guard was able to get a new van. The new van is a 2019 Ford Transit 150 Wagon. We received many donations, but the two largest benefactors were Frank Williams from Landers McCarty Dodge and Landers McCarty Subaru along with the Redstone Federal Credit Union. Barnes Signs put a wrap on the van, noting the American Legion Honor Guard Post 237. Also, our two largest benefactors' names are noted on the van. We also want to thank Tom Hartley who sent out dozens of letters asking for donations. Due to those letters, we received donations which helped to purchase the van.

Attention: Vietnam Medevac Crew

Congressman Dale Strong's office has contacted the American Legion requesting the name and information regarding any veteran (alive or deceased) in North Alabama who had served as a crew member, medical personnel, or pilot assigned to medical evacuation duty in Vietnam. The Congressman is sponsoring a bill to commemorate their service. If you or someone you know was a medevac pilot, crewman or medic please email the veteran's name and email address and a brief description of his or her Medevac service to:

Saturday Breakfast: We will be serving breakfast to the CVMA on Saturday, August 17, 2024. The breakfast will be open to the membership after the CVMA has been served,

A Message from the First Vice Commander, Rob Satterwhite

Greetings to you all. I just want to remind everyone that dues for the year began being collected in July. I know many of you (like myself) have your yearly dues set to auto-pay. We are beginning to see some of these auto renewals come in, but if you aren't set to automatically renew, please take this as a gentle reminder to come in and renew.

A couple of times a year I will be doing "buddy checks" of Legionnaires. I have just begun my first round of these calls for the year. This is me calling you on the phone and making sure all is well in your life and seeing if there's anything you need from your Legion. I am not trying to sell you anything or talk you into volunteering for anything, so please keep that in mind if you take my call. Speaking of calls, I have had some very interesting and enjoyable conversations with many of you, and I truly appreciate you taking the time to speak with me and provide your feedback.

Thanks,
Rob

UNSUNG HEROES--- CODE GIRLS OF WORLD WAR II

Germany and Japan were using sophisticated machinery and complicated systems to encode diplomatic and military messages and seeing that this would be a problem for any US war effort, the US Navy and US Army set about transforming their relatively modest code-breaking operations into departments that would be able to deal with the war threat. The Navy's and Army's efforts to assemble robust code-breaking departments would lead the services to call on thousands of patriotic American women to join the war effort--the so-called code girls of World War II. During the course of World War II, they would be responsible for a number of monumental code-breaking victories. The women who joined the Navy's and Army's code-breaking efforts were recruited through various channels. One of these channels targeted female college students. In the fall of 1941, under the pressure of looming war, the Navy and Army asked various women's colleges to recommend students who were both bright and patriotic to be a part of a special program. The colleges recommended a total of 197 young women. Each of the recommended students first received a mysterious letter inviting her to an interview with a professor. If during that interview these students confirmed that they liked crossword puzzles and that they were not married or engaged, they were then asked to attend an introductory course in cryptanalysis as part of a program that would make them code breakers for the Navy and Army. This course was attended under a strict oath of secrecy. Weekly the students were tested on the material and the test results were sent to the Pentagon for evaluation. Not all students were selected to remain in the program, and only some of those were selected to remain in the program, and only some of those who were selected decided to continue. Only 74 of the original 197 students both made it through the curriculum and chose to remain in the program.

Following the attack on Pearl Harbor, the Navy and Army turned to these 74 women code-breakers and made them Department of Defense civilian employees. Working 10-12 hour shifts they worked tirelessly at breaking either German or Japanese codes. The women assigned to the breaking of German codes were up against Shark, a four-rotor Enigma machine that was used to relay information about the location of Allied ships. The women breaking Japanese codes were primarily trying to decipher JN-25, one of the Japanese Imperial Navy's fleet codes. Their work required intense concentration and was emotionally taxing. They all knew that their success in deciphering enemy messages could mean the difference between life and death for US soldiers, sailors and marines.

By April 1943, the numbers of these women code breakers increased to 3,000. These code breakers were successfully breaking Japanese fleet codes and reading enemy messages. Their work helped the Allies keep track of the Imperial Japanese Navy's movements—including the plans of Admiral Yamamoto, the man behind the Pearl Harbor attack. (continued on page 7)

Through the unrelenting efforts of these women, Operation Vengeance, a mission meant to effect Yamamoto's death, on April 18, 1943, Yamamoto's was killed when his aircraft was shot down. Through their efforts, many important German codes were broken as well, often with the assistance of the bombe machines.

These were machines manned daily by these women code breakers invented to discover the daily code settings of the German Enigma machine. By 1944, the bombe machines were regularly cracking Enigma's settings. The work these women did was invaluable. By the Autumn of 1944, the Allies had managed to sink most of the German U-boats operating in the Atlantic and despite the German navy's attempt to reconstruct itself, the Allies rate of destruction remained overwhelming.

The efforts of these code breakers culminated with the Allied invasion of Normandy. Deciphered messages revealed that German defenses along the French coastline were strongest at Calais. Armed with this information, Allied leaders decided to mount their invasion at Normandy. To throw the Germans off the scent, these code breaking teams created fake message traffic sending out false information that would convince Axis leaders that the Allies intended to attack via the Strait of Dover. The success of this elaborate subterfuge would save thousands of Allied lives. As the Allies invaded the Normandy coast, women code breakers worked around the clock to decrypt German messages concerning the action, and their efforts continued to advance the Allied cause up until the end of the war.

After the war, many of these women returned home to loved ones, never breaking their oaths of silence. Some, however, pursued careers with the National Security Agency, the federal program that resulted from the code breaking units formed during the war.

It is an indisputable fact, however, that regardless of their post-war paths and despite the belated recognition of their unwavering efforts, each of the women who broke codes during World War II helped the United States emerge victorious from a harrowing conflict that changed the course of history.

HUMOR IN UNIFORM

DON'T MESS AROUND WITH AN OLD MARINE

The IRS decides to audit the taxes of a retired Master Gunnery Sergeant Joe Semper Fi and summons him to the IRS office. The IRS auditor was not surprised when Semper Fi showed up with his lawyer.

The auditor said, "Well sir, you have an extravagant lifestyle, spend a lot of money and no identified employment, which you explain by saying that you are very successful gambling. I'm not sure the IRS finds that believable."

"I'm a great gambler and I can prove it says Semper Fi." How about a demonstration?"

The auditor thinks for a moment and says, "OK, go ahead."

Semper Fi says, "I'll bet you a thousand dollars that I can bite my own eye."

The auditor thinks a moment and says, "It's a bet." Semper Fi removes his glass eye and bites it. The auditor's jaw drops.

Semper Fi says, "Now, I'll bet you two thousand dollars that I can bite my other eye."

The auditor can tell Semper Fi isn't blind, so he takes the bet.

Semper Fi removes his dentures and bites his good eye. The stunned auditor now realizes that he has wagered and lost three grand with Semper Fi's attorney as a witness. He starts to get nervous.

"Want to double or nothing?" Semper Fi asks?" I'll bet you six thousand dollars that I can stand on one side of your desk and pee in that waste basket on the other side, and never get a drop anywhere in between." The auditor, twice burned, is very cautious and apprehensive now, but thinks carefully about the bet and decides there's no way this old guy could possibly manage that stunt, so he agrees to the bet again. Semper Fi stands beside the desk and unzips his pants, but although he strains mightily, he can't make the stream reach the wastebasket on the other side, so he pretty much urinates all over the auditor's desk. The auditor leaps with joy, realizing that he has just turned a major loss into a huge win. But Semper Fi's attorney moans and puts his head in his hands.

"Are you OK? The auditor asks the attorney.

"Not really," says the attorney. "This morning when Semper Fi told me he'd been summoned for an audit, he bet me twenty-five thousand dollars that he could come in here and pee all over your desk and that you'd be happy about it."
