Jerry Phelps Post 237 Commander Commander's Corner

Greetings fellow Legionnaires, Auxiliary, Sons of the Legion and Legion Riders.

October is here and you know what that means, it is time for the annual Early Bird Membership Appreciation Dinner. The dinner will be held on Monday October 21st at 6:00 PM. The dinner is free to all members who have paid their 2025 dues. Dues will be accepted the night of the dinner, so it is not too late to pay your dues to get the free dinner.

Tanya and I had the opportunity to attend the Department Veteran's Retreat that was held at Camp Chandler in Wetumpka, AL. It was very moving to hear the stories of the veterans that have overcome mental health issues and suicide attempts. The veterans were so grateful for the American Legion for enabling them to overcome those obstacles.

The Sunday Church service was led by the 2-time National SAL Chaplain Jeff Gibson. It was a very moving service. Brother Gibson is an awesome chaplain. If you ever get a chance to hear him in person, you won't regret it.

The Department is looking to bring the retreat to North Alabama in September of 2025. I will be urging members to sign up to attend and enjoy a fun filled weekend of games, fishing, bonfires and comradeship. The Department is also looking to bring the Mid-Winter Conference and the Department Convention back to Huntsville in Jan 2026 and June 2026, respectively. →

Finally, I would like to say thank you to the Post Executive Committee and to the members who attended the last membership meeting that unanimously voted to support my candidacy for the position of 1st Division Commander for the Department of Alabama. I will represent Post 237 and all of the Posts in the 1st Division with dignity and respect as did the past Department Officer's that have preceded me from the Clayton E. Moneymaker Post 237.

Bible Trivia: Which two gospel books were not written by Jesus' disciples? Mark and Luke

What must I do to be born again?

1. We all need to be saved

Romans 5:12 – "... sin came into the world through one man, and death through one man, and death through sin, and so death spread to all men because all sinned"

2. God sent the solution

John 3:16 – "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life."

3. Jesus is the answer

Acts 4:12 – "There is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given to people by which we must be saved."

4. Salvation is a gift

Ephesians – 2:8-9 – "For by grace you have been saved through faith. And this is not of your own doing; it is the gift of God, not a result of works, so that no one may boast."

5. You have the right to receive the gift

John 1:12 – "But to all who did receive him, who believed in him name, he gave the right to become children of God"

6. How to apply the solution

Romans 10:8-10 – "But what does it say? The word is near you, in your mouth and, in your heart, (that is, the word of faith that we proclaim) because, if you confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. For with the heart one believes and is justified, and with the mouth one confesses and is saved."

Prayer: Father, I recognize that I am a sinner and in need a savior. I confess my sins before you, ask for your forgiveness, and cleanse me of all unrighteousness.
I believe in my heart that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and rose from the dead.
I confess with my mouth that Jesus is Lord and I receive you as my Savior today, I am born again. Amen!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY U.S. NAVY

October 13th will be the U.S. Navy's 249th birthday. Here are seven facts you may not have known about the Navy:

1. George Washington was the father of the Navy. Despite having virtually no experience at sea, George Washington was a huge early proponent of the Navy, believing among other things that it would disrupt British supply lines. "It follows then as certain as that night succeeds day, that without a decisive naval force we can do nothing definitive, and with it, everything honorable and glorious," he wrote. Rather than wait for the Continental Congress to act, he used his authority as Commander in Chief of the Army to convert a small flotilla of fishing schooners into warships. The first of these, named Hannah after the wife of its owner, departed the Massachusetts coast in September 1775,--- over a month before the Continental Congress, upon being apprised of Washington's activities, officially established the Navy. The Hannah has since entered into lore as the Navy's founding vessel. All told, it captured 55 British ships by the time it was dissolved in 1777.
2. The Navy was disbanded following the Revolutionary War: The Continental Navy, Washington's flotilla and privateers all battled the British during the Revolutionary War. But some notable victories aside—Commander John Paul Jones, for instance, captured the frigate HMS Serapis after purportedly yelling, "I have not yet begun to fight!"—The American presence at sea was minimal compared to that of Britain's all powerful Royal Navy. By August 1781, the Continental Navy had shrunk to just two active war ships. Luckily for the colonists, France had joined their side. In a major September 1781, naval battle, the French gained control of the Chesapeake Bay, thus paving the way for the British surrender at Yorktown the following month. With money tight and no clear reason to maintain them, the Continental Navy's remaining ships were then sold or given away. The last to go, in 1785, was Alliance, a frigate that just two years earlier had participated in the final skirmish of the war off the Florida coast.
3. The Navy was brought back largely to fight pirates: Without the protection of a Navy, U.S. merchant ships began coming under attack from the so-called Barbary pirates of North Africa. American sailors were seized and imprisoned in 1785, and then again in 1793. To secure both the release of these men and commercial access to the Mediterranean Sea, the United States agreed to pay tribute to the Barbary States. But not before Congress revived the Navy in 1794, authorizing the construction of six warships. Including USS Constitution, which remains afloat to this day in Boston Harbor. In 1801, the ruler of Tripoli declared war as part of an attempt to extract increased tribute, and this time the Navy was sent in. Despite losing a 36-gun frigate that ran aground chasing a blockade runner, the Americans gained peace without tribute after capturing the port city of Derna in a daring 1805, raid. Hostilities with another Barbary State, Algiers, then broke out in 1815. In this Second Barbary War, a Navy squadron quickly defeated the opposing flagship and secured a lasting end to the Barbary practice of tribute and ransom. Meanwhile, over the same few decades, the Navy engaged the French in the Quasi-War (1798-1801), the British in the War of 1812 (1812-1815) and pirates in the Caribbean.

4. The Navy was outnumbered about 40 to 1 in the War of 1812: At the start of the War of 1812, the U.S. Navy had only 16 seagoing warships at its disposal, compared to more than 600 on the British side. Even with most of the Royal Navy occupied fighting Napoleon in Europe, a stifling blockade of the Atlantic coast took shape. The U. S. Navy did manage to win some single-ship actions in the Atlantic. In trouncing HMS Guerriere, for example, USS Constitution earned the nickname “Old Ironsides” for the way opposing cannonballs supposedly bounced right off. Yet its main successes came inland. With African Americans playing a big role---due to manpower shortages, a prohibition on black soldiers had gone out the window---Navy squadrons blasted their way to control of strategically important Lake Erie and Lake Champlain.
5. The Navy fought the slave trade even as slavery continued: In 1807, Congress banned the importation of new slaves into the United States though not slavery itself, which continued in the South. For the next 35 years, enforcement of this law was sporadic at best. The Navy rarely patrolled the west coast of Africa and only stopped vessels flying American flags. At the same time, other countries were denied permission to search boats suspected of carrying enslaved people. Finally, in 1842, the United States and Britain agreed to cooperate in suppressing the slave trade. A permanent U.S. Navy squadron was subsequently dispatched to Africa, yet even then it captured only 36 vessels in almost two decades of work. By comparison, the British detained several hundred vessels over the same time period. Critics accused the Navy’s leaders of failing to properly equip the squadron and southern-born officers deliberately forsaking their duty.
6. The Navy produced six future presidents during World War II: No president had ever served in the Navy until World War II when it suddenly turned into a near prerequisite for reaching the White House. John F. Kennedy commanded a motor torpedo boat that was run over by a Japanese destroyer in the Solomon Islands; Lyndon B. Johnson was briefly stationed in New Zealand and Australia despite being a sitting member of Congress; Richard Nixon supervised air cargo operations; Gerald Ford served as an aircraft carrier’s assistant navigator and was nearly swept overboard in a typhoon; Jimmy Carter attended the Naval Academy and became a submariner after the war; and George W. Bush flew 58 combat missions, including one in which he was shot down over the Pacific. In fact, from 1961 to 1993, the only non-Navy man to become president was Ronald Reagan.
7. The Navy won history’s largest maritime battle: The Navy fought in numerous major confrontations during World War II, none more important than the Battle of Leyte Gulf---the largest naval clash ever in terms of ship tonnage (though probably not in terms of the number of men or ships). After U.S. forces landed on the Philippine island of Leyte in October 1944, Japan responded by dispatching virtually every operational warship it had left. In four separate but related actions, four Japanese aircraft carriers, nine battleships, 19 cruisers, some three-dozen destroyers and hundreds of planes matched up against 32 American carriers, 12 battleships, 24 cruisers, more than 140 destroyers and some 1,500 planes. Both sides also had submarines and small auxiliary boats. In the end, the U.S. Navy repulsed the attack, giving it essentially undisputed command of the Pacific Ocean for the remainder of the war.

LAST LAUGH

Thibodeaux and Boudreaux: Hunting in Alaska

Thibodeaux and Boudreaux go hunting in Alaska. They hire a bush pilot to fly them out and they get to hunting.

Boudreaux bags himself the biggest elk you ever saw, and they haul it back to the plane. They huffing and panting, but they're excited. But the pilot, he ain't excited much, "I don't think this plane can carry that weight."

Boudreaux he gets real offended, "We was out here last year and got us one just about this size. That pilot got it on the plane and he had the same kinda plane."

Boudreaux and the pilot squabble a bit, and the pilot relents, "You sure that pilot last year was able to carry it?"

"Sure enough, it took some work to get it on the plane, but we got it on the plane."

They load it up and take off, the plane promptly crashes.

Boudreaux and Thibodeaux crawl out that plane holding their backs. Thibodeaux asks, "Boudreaux, do this place look familiar to you?"

Boudreaux looks around a bit and says, "This place look real familiar Thibodeaux. I think this the same place we crash last year."
